EMPIRE IS TO BE KEPT TOGETHER

Rt. Hon. J. Ramsay MacDonald Declares Canada Worthy of Being Custodian of Traditions

CANADIAN CLUB CHEERS SPEAKER

Labor Leader Says Pacific Seaboard and Harbors Becoming More and More Link of East and West

"We must live closer together, you in Canada and I in the Old Country. The British Empire is to be kept together, the freedom of the self-governing Dominions is to be kept sacred, and the Mother Country is to be kept in its splendid status by representatives of the Dominions and the Mother Country holding frequent personal communication with each other."

"From Quebec to Victoria I have experienced the growth of a nation that is worthy to be the custodian and guardian of those magnificent traditions of our race."

"How gratifying it is to me to come to this wonderful, magical spot that appeals to the best sentiments of my being, and find that this spot is held by worthy representatives of the British race, that this outpost of the West, this frontier of the East, is occupied by our race, that our tongue is spoken, our history is taught and our traditions are being preserved here."

"As a step towards an abiding world peace, how proud you must have felt that the name of Canada was inscribed at the end of the anti-war declaration signed at Paris, and that you today more nobly and more clearly stand out as a nation that is going to take its share in building the City of God founded upon Peace on this Earth."

Thus spoke Rt. Hon. J. Ramsay MacDonald, P.C., M.P., former Labor Prime Minister of Great Britain, and present leader of the Opposition in the British House of Commons, amid ringing cheers, to over 600 members of the Men's and Women's Canadian Clubs last night in the Empress Hotel ballroom. The distinguished British Labor leader was tendered a rousing reception, and was given a right royal welcome to British Columbia's capital city.

EXTENDS WELCOME

Mr. Kenneth F. Brown, president of the Canadian Club of Victoria, which held the supper gathering in honor of Mr. MacDonald, stated it was the first occasion on which a Canadian Club has had the privilege of entertaining a former Prime Minister of Great Britain. Mr. MacDonald, through the qualities of courage, tenacity and industry, won the leadership of the great party he represents and attained the most exalted position in the political life of Great Britain.

"His career has been a striking example to the youth of our nation."

MR. E. W. BEATTY ON EFFECT OF PRAIRIE CROP

Hard to Overestimate Significance and Consequences of Great Yield, Says Railway Head

WILL RESULT IN MORE PROSPERITY

WINNIPEG, Aug. 28.—"It is hard to overestimate the significance of the present crop in its consequences to the general business of the Dominion," said E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in an interview here tonight.

"Following as it does upon four crops of more than average size and value, it is obvious that its importance to the country, both East and West, is very great," he added. "If the anticipated yield is anything like that prophesied, Canada is assured of prosperous conditions until the middle of next year."

Mr. Beatty said general business conditions were excellent, and that "while the improvement in the condition of all trades is not uniform, there are few that show a recession from the conditions existing during the past year."

SEATTLE MAYOR HAS CLOSE CALL

Mayor Edwards Planned to Be Passenger on Plane Saturday, But Remained Over Here

If Mayor Frank Edwards, of Seattle, had not decided to remain in Victoria a few hours to welcome an excursion party of Elks arriving here from Seattle last Saturday, he might have been one of the unfortunate passengers on the missing B.C. Airways, Limited, tri-motored Ford monoplane. Mayor Edwards flew over from Seattle to Victoria on Thursday afternoon to meet Mayor J. C. Pender, arriving here about 4 o'clock. They left together in the plane at 4:15 p.m. to attend the banquet Thursday night in Vancouver for the officers of H.M.S. Despatch and H.M.S. Durban. Mayor Edwards returned to Victoria by boat on Friday and was the guest of Mayor Pender.

Seattle's chief magistrate planned to return to Seattle on the big tri-motored plane on Saturday morning, when he received a request to remain over and welcome the Elks. His Worship returned home on the afternoon boat Saturday.

MASKED BANDIT SEIZES PURSE

Curious Behavior of Hold-Up Man, Who Forces Motorist to Drive Him to Stadacona Park

TWO PERSONS ALSO ACCOSTED

Mystery shrouds the disappearance of a masked gunman at Stadacona Park last night, while the attempts of the city police department to locate the unidentified man were unsuccessful up to an early hour this morning. First information was received at the police station when, at 9:35 o'clock, Mr. Tom Gibson, 222 Menzies Street, telephoned to say that he had been held up on Dallas Road by a man with a gun, while sitting in his car with Miss Ada Phillips, a girl with blonde hair. Phillips, who is Constable Woodburn, Clare and Blackstock attended the call, and met Gibson at Oak Bay Junction, from which place he was telephoning.

Mr. Gibson told the police that while he was sitting in his car with Miss Phillips, the gunman approached and pointed a black gun at him and demanded money. Mr. Gibson replied that he had none, while his lady companion handed over her purse. The masked bandit jumped into the back seat of the car and demanded that he be driven to Stadacona Park, which Mr. Gibson did without argument.

On arriving at the park the culprit handed the purse back to Miss Phillips and immediately made his disappearance.

He later made an attempt to hold up two other men at the park, according to reports received subsequently at police headquarters.

Mr. William Hawkins, 1643 Denman Street, who followed the gunman, finally lost sight of him in the vicinity of Stadacona Park. His description as received by the police is as follows: Tall, wearing dark blue suit, black mask and cap.

Marketing Act Not Declared Valid in Full

VANCOUVER, Aug. 28.—Judgment upholding the validity of the Produce Marketing Act, handed down by Mr. Justice Murphy this week, does not cover operations of the act respecting exports from British Columbia, it is pointed out by William Savage, Vancouver solicitor who is acting for Interior growers in opposing the legislation.

Before the question can be settled definitely, he claims this phase must be taken into consideration by the courts. The next move, however, would seem to be up to the committee of direction to bring this point to issue.

FALLING WALLS KILL AND MAIM

SHELBY, N.C., Aug. 28.—Six bodies had been recovered tonight from the wreckage of three buildings that collapsed today in the business district of the town. Twelve are known to have been injured, some of them seriously, and other bodies may be in the debris.

The known dead are: Miss Ora Eskridge, Guy Green and Alex. Hoyle, employees of the First National Bank, one of the buildings that gave way; Zeb Blanton and his son, Oarla, farmers who were customers at the bank. Among the injured were George Blanton, acting vice-president of the bank.

Excavation Crew

Excavations under the Hadley tailorshop are thought to have caused the collapse. Seventeen men are said to have comprised the crew at work. Five of these were brought out alive, two unhurt, and the others have not been accounted for. Some of them are thought to have lost their lives. The other buildings that gave way was the Goodie Grocery Company, next to the bank and tailorshop. All were two-story brick structures.

B.C. Apples TO BE SHOWN

Province Will Have Display at Manchester Show in October, But Not Associated Growers

FRUIT WILL GO TO LONDON OFFICE

The Associated Fruit Growers will not have a competitive display at the Imperial Fruit Show at Manchester, England, this year. This is due to the fact that the show has been altered as to its date, and is being brought on earlier than formerly. The putting forward of the date would preclude British Columbia growers from having a display in shape to compete with the fruits from other parts of the Empire.

The Manchester show will be staged from October 19 to October 27, which is a month earlier than formerly. At the same time there will be a display made by the province at that great centre. This will be in a Dominion-wide exhibit in which the participants will be the Dominion Government and the Governments of Ontario, Nova Scotia and British Columbia. Each of these Governments will contribute to the display forty boxes of apples.

Following the closing of the fair, the British Columbia apples will go to the Agents-General in London, and will be utilized by him in advertising the possibilities of the province in the matter of fruit growing. Distribution of these apples will be made to various newspapers and others who are in a position to advertise the fruit on a large scale.

There will be a display made at Montreal and Toronto this fall from this province, the Government undertaking the transportation charges in getting the fruit forwarded to the Eastern centres, as a means of advertising the province in this line.

The Province of British Columbia two years ago won the special trophy provided by the Agents-General in London, by winning the cup outright.

The new cup, which in turn provided by the Agents-General in London was won last year by Nova Scotia. It is felt to be a pity that the show has been altered in its date, and that the Province of British Columbia is not able to make a good showing, and thus be given the opportunity of competing for the new trophy offered.

Struck by Lightning

SUDBURY, Ont., Aug. 28.—One fatality is reported from a severe electrical storm which swept Sudbury district today. The three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. Child was killed by a bolt of lightning which struck her parents' cottage on an island in Lake Penage, nine miles south of Whitefish. The bolt, after striking a tree within a few feet of the cottage, jumped through a window into the room where the child was sleeping. The other members of the household escaped injury, though several windows were broken by the shock.

LIBERAL PARTY OF GT. BRITAIN FRAMES POLICY

Executive of Federation Publishes Resolutions to Be Submitted to Annual Convention of Party

SOLUTION OFFERED FOR UNEMPLOYMENT

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The executive of the National Liberal Federation will submit to the annual meeting of the party at Great Yarmouth, on October 11 and 12, a number of resolutions covering almost the whole range of national affairs. One resolution condenses the record of the Government, which it accuses of being the only Government in Europe which has increased its post-war military expenditures, of making numerous inroads on the system of free trade, and of failing to reduce the volume of unemployment.

Another resolution declares the Labor Party has proved itself impotent as the Opposition. Recommendations on the unemployment question are included in a resolution asserting that neither the Government nor the Labor Party has any coherent and thorough policy for reducing the volume of unemployment.

UNEMPLOYMENT POLICY

"A wise policy would systematically use the surplus labor now available for increasing natural resources by a well-planned programme of national development," it is declared. "A great work is waiting to be carried out, and sufficient capital is available if properly organized. The utilization of the unemployed on this work, instead of paying them to live in involuntary idleness, would give an immediate stimulus to all industries of the country."

"The machinery of co-operative industry," says another resolution, "should be improved by establishing a ministry of industry with representative council."

Other resolutions deal with the coal trade, agriculture, education, housing, free trade, rating reform, temperance and electoral reform. It is proposed to issue a manifesto which should be the basis of the resolutions adopted in view of the immense expense of a general election campaign.

PLANES TO TAKE 35 PASSENGERS

Service From Vancouver to San Francisco and Intermediate Points Announced

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—Four-motored planes able to carry thirty-five passengers will soon be in service between San Francisco and Vancouver, B.C. H. Clay Bernard, capitalist here, and new executive vice-president of the Union Air Lines, Inc., announced today.

Bernard said the planes would carry twenty passengers normally on the run between here and Seattle. He added that on short runs, as between Portland and Seattle, thirty-five would be carried. He said orders for several new planes had been placed. The planes, he added, will be of the latest type, in three sizes, for fourteen, twenty-one and thirty-five passengers, respectively. Bernard described the carriers as bi-planes with room for twenty passengers in the main compartment and for fifteen more in a smoking room and buffet. He said the terminals would be at Vancouver, B.C., and Millfield here.

Featherstone, of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, Hamilton. Searchers Find Objects Possibly From Plane

President of B.C. Airways Is Quoted as Crediting Story of Canneryman Who Saw Plane Head Back to Sea After Missing Obstacle at Pirates Cove

PORT TOWNSEND, Aug. 28.—Pieces of aeroplane upholstery and several tourist postcards, supposedly from the B.C. Airways plane which disappeared Saturday morning with seven persons, were picked up on the beach several miles south-west of here today.

Lieutenant-Commander L. L. Bennett, directing the coastguard search for the missing plane, tonight declared he was satisfied that the fragments of upholstery were from the giant passenger ship. He ordered the search in Port Discovery, where the articles were picked up by George A. Smith, fire warden, and Dr. E. E. Gleason. With the pieces of upholstery were several fragments of felt used to insulate the body of the plane from the engines. Coastguard picket boats may grapple for the plane tomorrow. Prior to this discovery searchers had concentrated on Quimper Peninsula, on which Port Townsend is situated, and on the waters twelve miles south where many people reported seeing the plane Saturday morning. Some of the dozen volunteer aviators had clung consistently to their first theory that the plane crashed into the water on or near Port Discovery, while flying in a heavy fog from Victoria to Seattle.

Mr. J. Ernest Eve, president of the B.C. Airways, when the material was described to him over long distance telephone, said it tallied with material used on the passenger seats. An official of the company is expected here tomorrow to determine definitely whether the stuff is from the plane. Upholstery was fire-proof construction, with green leather on the outside and apparently silver paint on the inside. Patrol Boat No. 274 coastguard, which took up the search where the plane was now supposed to be, reported discovering traces of oil on the water. Well-defined slicks previously seen in this locality had disappeared early in the day.

Commander Bennett tonight requested his superior, John G. Berry, to ask the naval air station at Sand Point, Seattle, to send as many seaplanes as possible tomorrow to aid in the search.

FACTORY BURNS IN VANCOUVER

B.C. BOX COMPANY PROPERTY, VALUED AT $200,000, IS DESTROYED

Pierre Paris Tannery Also Demolished—High Wind Fans Flames—Fireman Overcome

VANCOUVER, Aug. 28.—Fanned by a high west wind, fire which broke out in the B.C. Box Company, Limited, factory, 295 Second Avenue West, at 2:45 o'clock this afternoon, demolished the company mill and the tannery of Pierre Paris before it was brought under control.

The plant of A. B. Cushing Mills, Limited, on the same side of the Second Avenue was threatened by the flames which ate nearly through large piles of lumber between it and the box factory. Loss is estimated in the neighborhood of a quarter of a million dollars. The box factory was valued at $200,000, and the tannery at some $50,000.

Within a few minutes of the start flames had completely destroyed the box plant and swept on to wipe out the tannery. The fire then began to lick its way across piled lumber to the A. B. Cushing plant and the lumber stocks surrounding it.

Urged by the rapidity of the spread of the flames, plants in the vicinity turned out all their workers to wet down roofs and stand by for eventualities.

That the story sounds reasonable to Eve for he declares that all the company pilots had strict orders to return to Victoria if the weather became sufficiently foggy to hamper visibility. Walker knew every tree on Protection Island and Washington Harbor and Discovery Bay shores," said Eve. "When he saw where he was sweeping low at Pirates' Cove, he undoubtedly headed towards Victoria as he was instructed to do." As to his theories, he has two, both based on Coles' sight of the big monoplane.

TWO THEORIES

That Walker was winging the plane back to Victoria. That a false horizon made by blinding fog and sea trapped Walker into flying lower than he should, in which event the plane's landing gear caught on a wave to buckle the plane into the sea head down. Eve points out that High tension wires dropping from burning poles added to the difficulties of fire fighting and endangered the thousands of spectators who gathered to watch the blaze.

At 3:40 p.m., the fire was under control and the loss was confined to the box factory, tannery and piled lumber. A desperate fight was necessary to save nearby buildings, among them the Lester Iron Works, Anderson Furniture Company, Progressive Engineering Works, and the city barn and blacksmith shop across the street.

STARTED NEAR ROOF
Eye witnesses declared that the fire started in a space immediately under the roof of the box factory building. It is believed that this space was used for storage.

The alarm was turned in by employees of Progressive Engineering Works, who also assisted in saving fifteen automobiles which were parked immediately across the street from the box factory.

When they saw smoke issuing from a warehouse used by the city works department, several of the engineering works employees broke into the building and extinguished the flames there.

Captain J. Graham, No. 1 firehall, was overcome by smoke, but was revived by a pulmonologist under the direction of District Fire Chief T. J. H. Graves. Other firemen were treated for smoke-filled lungs.

EMPIRES TO BE KEPT TOGETHER

tion of what can be accomplished under British institutions. His life has also been an example and an inspiration to the people of all nations in the fact that he has always had the courage of his convictions and has ever been prepared to suffer hardships rather than concede them.

"Whatever difference there may be as to policies and views between the political parties of Great Britain, we as a Canadian Club can express no opinion," President Ferguson continued. "There can be no difference of opinion, however, that our guest has won a very high place in history among the great British names of this generation."

In most cordially welcoming Mr. MacDonald to this far Western outpost of Empire, President Ferguson expressed the hope that Mr. MacDonald might be long spared to continue to influence for good the political destinies of the nation.

GREETED WITH CHEERS

Upon rising to address the vast assembly, Mr. MacDonald was greeted with cheers and thunderous applause.

"I wish to thank again the Canadian Club for being a generous host to me. I'm beginning to feel far too much at home in Canada," Mr. MacDonald said, amid laughter and applause.

Mr. MacDonald stated he had come from the East where he had seen the successful termination of one of the most remarkable conflicts in history; he had seen the French and British lie down together, and the political genius of both peoples allowed them to forget, forgive, and co-operate. He had come from the great Prairies where their fields of golden grain, he had come through the majestic mountains with their unrivaled grandeur and glory, and he had reached the Pacific Ocean, the Western end of his journey.

What a wonderful combination you have here—mountain, prairie, land, vale and open sea. What a wonderful country you have," he exclaimed.

The speaker declared that British traditions were as firmly rooted on the Prairies of Canada as they were in the villages of England.

"There is a new world being created right at your very door. Victoria is a place very much like Constantinople used to occupy between Asia and Europe one moment looking to the West, one moment looking to the East. Constantinople owed its greatness, power and respect to the fact that in itself it had the traditions and traditions of both East and West."

A VITAL LINK

"This city of Victoria, this seaboard, these harbors, are becoming more and more a link between the East and West, and also a link with the other side of the world. Here one thinks of the future—the past. And what a wonderful future is in store for you," Mr. MacDonald said.

"You have felt the effect of the opening of the Panama Canal. This new link will recreate the whole Pacific. This Pacific is bringing right up to our very doors the elements of war and peace," he stated.

The distinguished guest stated there would be difficulties between capital and labor, and many other problems would have to be met, but, "I want to tell you how gratified I feel that you will face and solve them in the best British tradition in your power."

"We in the Old Country and you in Canada are divided by the sea. However, the sea has been the highway of the British race, and we can use the sea to bring about a closer unity between the Mother Country and Canada. The sea is our pathway and we shall keep it," declared Mr. MacDonald, amid cheers.

Mr. MacDonald declared he could say unblushingly and without apology that he was a party man, and added that "whatever party we may belong to in British politics, we do strive for the health and honor of the nation."

The speaker expressed the hope that the visit of his three daughters and himself to Canada may have done something towards bringing the people of Great Britain and this Dominion closer together.

THOUGHT OF CANADA

"In any event," Mr. MacDonald said, "When I go back to England, to the House of Commons and the committee of the House, I shall think of Canada, not as a geographical expression, or as something that is part of the world, but as something that is part of the British Commonwealth, but I shall think of Canada as something much more intimate and personal, as the men and women I have met on my trip in this country, and with whom I have exchanged opinions, and whom I regard as my neighbors, my kith and kin and fellow countrymen."

In concluding, Mr. MacDonald said that if his trip had done more to bind together the Mother Country and Canada, that would be his return for the generous hospitality that he had received wherever he had visited in his journey across Canada.

Premier S. F. Tolmie was tendered an ovation when he rose to express the Canadian Club's appreciation to Mr. MacDonald for his kindness in addressing the gathering, and the wonderful message he had delivered. Dr. Tolmie said Mr. MacDonald's discourse was one of the best addresses which the Canadian Club had listened to for a long time, and he assured the British Labor leader that the audience would long remember his words.

The speaker said he was very much impressed with Mr. MacDonald's conviction that Canadians should more frequently visit the Old the airman's great danger in a fog is the difficulty to distinguish between fog and water.

2. When Walker left Washington Harbor for Victoria he may have become lost and landed in trees in some isolated part of Vancouver Island after his ship had run out of fuel. It was pointed out that the big plane would settle down safely in the trees and the people could climb down. It was also pointed out that there are some parts of Vancouver Island from which it would take a person fifteen days to walk to civilization. Tom Taylor, Captain of the British Columbia pilot boat, scouts the second theory because he says:

"I was out in the strait that day and it was clear on the Victoria shore."

THOROUGH PILOT

Eve said he had flown with Walker many times and considered him the most thorough pilot he had ever known. Eve scouted the theory that the plane is in the trees on the Olympic Peninsula or that engine trouble developed.

He is accompanied by Sergeant Robert Owens, of the British Columbia police, and a Vancouver newspaper man.

Country, and the people of Great Britain visit this Dominion.

WAY OF UNDERSTANDING

"The only way for us to really understand each other is by such visits and personal contact," Dr. Tolmie stated. "We must know our respective conditions, appreciate our respective problems, and we will be brought closer together."

Dr. Tolmie said Mr. MacDonald had come to Canada at a most fortunate time, for he could now see the two parties have been organized to hunt down dogs.

Formerly Third in Export of Electrical Machinery—Now Leads All Other Countries

MONTREAL, Aug. 28.—Herbert G. Williams, parliamentary secretary of the British Canadian Club, said that "some people think that Great Britain has passed the peak and begun its decline. I am satisfied that this does not represent the truth."

He instanced that in export of electrical machinery, Great Britain before the war occupied third position with the United States and Germany first. Now Great Britain leads both the United States and Germany. The number of people at work in Great Britain is three-quarters of a million greater than before the war, or a total expansion greater than that of Canada. We have made a total greater progress in the last fourteen years than you have."

"It is true," he said, "that Great Britain also has a greater volume of unemployment. That, too, was three-quarters of a million greater than in 1914. We relieve the burden of the unemployed by a system of unemployment insurance, which to my profound regret, some newspapers describe as a dolt."

It is no more a form of charity than when you business men pay a fire insurance premium and the company pays you insurance if you have a fire."

Mr. Williams urged further development of trade between Great Britain and Canada.

Judge: "Do not deny it any more, three people have testified that they saw you steal."

Accused: "What are three? I can bring millions who did not see me."

Due to the noncorrosive metal used in the cabin of the plane and the unbreakable glass, Eve says it would take months for the plane to break into the cabin to free anything from the plane if it is under water.

CONCLUSIVE EVIDENCE

VANCOUVER, Aug. 28.—Conclusive evidence that Dr. Floyd D. Soverel, of East Orange, N.J., was a passenger in the ill-fated Victoria-Seattle airplane on Saturday, was supplied today by G. Crawford, Thirty-Fourth Avenue, who traveled from Vancouver to Victoria in the plane, and talked with Soverel on the way.

"When we reached Victoria," said Mr. Crawford, "he said to me: 'This plane goes on to Seattle, doesn't it? I'll stay on board if it does.'"

EAST ORANGE, N.J., Aug. 28.—Dr. Floyd D. Soverel, of this city, who is reported to have been a passenger aboard the airplane lost in Puget Sound, Saturday, had been traveling through the West since June with his brother, Elmer V. Soverel, and the latter's wife and two children. Their itinerary called for arrival today at Lake Louise, Alta. No word of Soverel having been included in the accident had been received here today.

CAT AND DOG HUNT

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 28.—Panicked since receiving word from Toronto that the kitchen which bit and mangled the arm of St. Andrew's, N.B., and of British Columbia.

One of the most striking exhibits in this striking collection is a consignment of diminutive totem poles carved from an aged Sitka Indian living far north on the Pacific Coast. An eye which loves the oddly beautiful will at once be struck by these weird replicas of the Redman's most ambitious adventure in creative design.

The ferociously powerful heads of animals and birds surmounting symbolic combinations of line, are given by this ancient craftsman in black slate. It would be hard to imagine more decorative mantel ornaments. The totem pole motif is happily carried out by other craftsmen in wood and pottery. The totems carved from wood are brilliantly painted.

At the work of the guild is entirely voluntary, all the proceeds from the sale of these objects goes to the craftsmen. Each year approximately $70,000 is distributed in this way. The handicrafts are further brought before the general public by an exhibition held each year in the Art Gallery at Montreal.

In forming the league its founders had originally in mind the happiness of the immigrant from abroad, who so often becomes discontented after a brief sojourn among strange scenes and people. By encouraging him and his family to continue the crafts of their homeland, particularly through the long winters, when farmwork was at a standstill, they planned to provide him with an occupation for his mind and hands, and a source of extra income at one and the same time.

Lectures and classes for the children of city-dwelling immigrants form an important department of the guild's work. The organization is at present headed by Professor Henry Ormiston, of McGill University.

BIRTH RATE FALLS

LONDON, Aug. 28.—London's birth rate has fallen continuously since 1921, says the London County Council's annual health report.

The population has remained at about four and a half million, but the child population has decreased considerably, the proportion of children under fifteen years of age having fallen from 30 per cent in 1901 to 26 per cent at the last census.

If the decrease of births and the present rate of infantile mortality continue until the next census, children under fifteen will form less than 20 per cent of the total population.

CRAFTWORK SHOWN BY IMMIGRANTS

Exhibition Shows Value of Preserving Native, Foreign and Canadian Handicraft

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 27.—Twenty-one years ago the Canadian Handicrafts Guild was organized with the object of preserving the varied crafts native to this country, or brought here by settlers from European lands. The hope behind the movement was that these crafts might be stimulated to take root in Canada and to develop along distinctively Canadian lines.

Today the guild's exhibition room at Montreal is a veritable wonderland of beautiful and useful articles, designed by the brains and shaped by the hands of Quebec habitants, Scotch-descended natives of the Maritimes, Central Europeans settled in the Prairie provinces, Slavians and Indians of British Columbia, and a dozen other races which, for untold centuries, have boasted peculiar skill in one or other creative craft.

Not until one views this remarkable display can one realize the sure sense of design and color harmony and the painstaking workmanship which these men and women, living for the most part in remote districts isolated from the influences of modern city life, put into their creations. Here are a number of finely proportioned animals—a bear, a cow, a deer—carved from wood with a sure touch of the artist by French-Canadian peasant women.

Upon the walls half a dozen strikingly decorative hooked rugs, portraying old-time barbettes in full sail or quiet rural scenes. They are the work of farm wives in Prince Edward Island for the most part, though many come from New Brunswick and Nova Scotia as well.

The sense of movement, which these rug-makers by the Atlantic have succeeded in catching in a difficult medium, is astonishing.

Upon the shelves are squares of "catalogue," the French-Canadian carpet weaver in the production of which the habitant wives are so expert. Beside them are piled rolls of homespun for dresses and men's shirts. On little tables rest intriguing examples of Indian beadwork, baskets woven from scented hay, and finely glazed bits of pottery from the ovens of St. Andrew's, N.B., and of British Columbia.

One of the most striking exhibits in this striking collection is a consignment of diminutive totem poles carved from an aged Sitka Indian living far north on the Pacific Coast. An eye which loves the oddly beautiful will at once be struck by these weird replicas of the Redman's most ambitious adventure in creative design.

LAWYERS WANT MORE PUBLICITY

PLAN TO BE WORKED OUT BY COMMITTEE OF GOVERNING BODIES

Regina Conference Unanimously Re-elects Sir James Aikins as President

REGINA, Aug. 28.—The second conference of the governing bodies of the legal profession in Canada came to a close this evening. The members assembled unanimously re-elected as president Sir James A. Aikins, K.V., LL.D., Winnipeg. The two vice-presidents chosen are G. R. Monkton, K.C., Montreal, and A. L. Smith, K.C., Calgary. H. J. Syme, K.C., Kitchener, Ont., was re-elected secretary and the executive will be nominated by the different law societies of the provinces of Canada.

During their sessions today the members of the governing bodies have considered reports on a great many matters of vital importance to the legal profession and this evening relaxed as guests of the vice-presidents of the Canadian Bar Association at a dinner and reception.

In the course of his presidential address this morning, Sir James Aikins voiced the opinion that although in the past benchers and members of the profession generally performed their duties without any particular publicity, the time had come when the public generally should be informed more fully as to the work of the legal profession.

Following this expression of opinion, a special committee was appointed on the subject, and during the next year a publicity plan will be worked out.

under the chairmanship of Sir James Aikins, K.C., Winnipeg, president.

The proceedings opened with a welcome to the province and city by H. J. Schull, K.C., president of the Saskatchewan Law Society, to which Sir James briefly replied.

Reporting on behalf of the committee on encroachments on the lawyer's sphere of activities, W. E. Burns, Vancouver, declared that the present situation was very unsatisfactory from the standpoint of the public and members of the legal profession alike.

DELINQUENCIES

Of the cases which have contributed to this unsatisfactory situation, according to the report, not a few are attributed to the legal profession itself. The report adds:

"It is alleged that in dealing with its public, the legal profession has not kept abreast with the developments of modern business, its methods and ramifications. That in regard to its bill of cost and charges, speaking generally, it has not adapted itself to a line of dealing more understandable and acceptable. It is also alleged that individual members of the profession, to an extent not inconsiderable, associate themselves in a business way with the predatory classes and thus lend strength to the poachers."

"It is further alleged that disciplinary measures are not established and applied as drastically and as expeditiously as should be in respect to the dealings of the profession with the public."

RECOMMENDATIONS

As a means of correcting existing anomalies the following remedies were recommended in the report:

1. Primarily reaching a definite conclusion as to what are the limits in modern and future affairs within which society should properly look to the lawyers for service.
2. Revision of the law school curriculum so that the young lawyer will be trained and equipped to render to the fullest extent that service which should be expected of him.
3. Revision of the methods of doing

One May Become Ottawa Senate Leader

BEFORE the next session of Parliament, a change in the Conservative leadership in the Senate will take place, as Senator W. B. Ross, who accepted the leadership temporarily, declared he would take it for only one session. The names of three prominent members of the Upper Chamber are mentioned in connection with the vacancy. They are, left to right: Senator F. B. All three members command a wide following.

ing the work and dealing with the public by the profession, so that there will be, to the greatest extent possible, an elimination or adjustment of those methods which are considered irksome or not in tune with public opinion.

4. Considered representation to classes of persons, associations, companies and government bodies encroaching upon the profession, as to the unfairness of their actions, and, in the event of failure to arrive at a reasonable understanding, then consideration of legitimate reprisals or counter-attacks.

5. Tightening and speeding up disciplinary measures and procedure.

6. Formally undertaking some reasonable and dignified means as a profession of bringing the public to the knowledge of the rights of the profession to serve, training and equipping for the services, control of members of the profession and the fullest protection for the benefits of the public.

FLETCHER CASE IS ADJOURNED

Yorkton, Sask., Negro Will Be Arraigned Again on Thursday on Attempted Murder Charge

The case of Freeman F. Fletcher, colored, of Yorkton, Sask., was further remanded yesterday in the city police court by Magistrate George Jay until tomorrow. The charge against Peter Lauchnick of driving his automobile to the common danger was dismissed by Magistrate Jay.

Following the hearing of prosecution evidence and the accused's testimony, the case of Leona Lee, charged with being the keeper of a disorderly house, was remanded until this morning, when several defence witnesses will be examined.

Belle Young, Billie Black, Alfred Alexander, and Yong, Chinese, who pleaded not guilty to being inmates of said premises, were also remanded until today.

WOMEN FREE WOMAN

GLASGOW, Aug. 28.—Incidents almost unprecedented in a British court occurred here today when Christiana Baillie, twenty-eight, was acquitted of a charge of culpable homicide in connection with the death of her husband. The jury included several women, besides the foreman, and these were unrestrained by many women in the court, as they rendered a verdict.

The accused, leaving court, was carried shoulder high. She had testified that her husband came home drunk, demanded a drink when she had no food in the house for her four children, threatened her and broke a chair, whereupon she struck him with a knife.

He died on the way to a hospital.

CIVILIZED FOODS DEATH TO SAVAGES

Cancer, tuberculosis, pneumonia are unknown to real savages who eat natural, alkali-forming foods.

Dr. Robert G. Jackson, shows why in his 428-page book, "HOW TO BE ALWAYS WELL." Dr. Jackson wrecked his own body by eating acid-forming foods of civilization so that nineteen years ago the great Sir William Osler gave him only four months to live. But he did not die. Instead he invented Roman Meal, a highly alkali-forming food, and lived entirely upon it for two whole years, at which time he was entirely well.

At sixty-eight he is still 100 per cent physically perfect, and gets younger each year. The secret? The twenty-five per cent dioxin in Roman Meal, which no other food can ever contain, because it is owned and controlled by Roman Meal Co., Ltd.

Roman Meal can be eaten uncooked or off the tin, and the alkaline properties keep the blood "cool" in summer, and constipation cannot obtain where sufficient Roman Meal is eaten.

Write for new uncooked Roman Meal recipe and his free booklet, "HOW TO KEEP WELL," to Dr. Robert G. Jackson, 315 Vine Avenue, Toronto (9), Ont. (Adv.)

Prince of Wales Says Good-Bye on Eve of Journey

ABERDEEN, Scotland, Aug. 28.—The Prince of Wales, on his way south from Balmoral Castle, where he had exchanged good-byes with the King, appeared today before a big crowd which watched him lay the corner stone of a new hospital here. This was his last official engagement in Great Britain before leaving with his brother, the Duke of Gloucester, on an African tour.

The Duke of York was another participant in the ceremony. Both received rousing receptions from the gathering.

The Prince of Wales had a rather rollicking time during the twelve-mile drive through Aberdeen streets. An exuberant crowd broke through the cordon of police and cut off the Prince's car from official cars which followed it.

He was then hemmed in by an unofficial bodyguard of cyclists, mostly messengers and tradesmen's boys, who rode behind him.

The Prince appeared to enjoy this thoroughly and laughed heartily when a butcher's boy, with a meat basket on the front of his bicycle, continued to hang on for some time to the side of the car after the rest of the escort was dispersed.

VANCOUVER NORMAL TO BE IMPROVED

Buildings Are to Be Inspected by Minister of Education, Who Will Proceed to Chilliwack

Hon. J. Hinchliffe, Minister of Education, will leave today for the Mainland. He will stop over in Vancouver for a day for the purpose of making an inspection of the Normal school, relative to the needs of enlarging the building to take care of the needs in the training of teachers.

Just before the election, the former Government called for tenders for the carrying out of improvements there. The tenders were to be in by July 16, but in view of the turn that the elections took, nothing was done in the matter of awarding a contract for the work.

The matter has been hanging in abeyance ever since, and before anything is done Mr. Hinchliffe will visit the place and go into the situation with those most closely connected with the institution, after which a decision will be reached as to what Government action shall be taken.

Following the inspection of the Normal School and other institutions connected with the Department of Education, Mr. Hinchliffe is expected to go to Chilliwack, where he will be present on invitation at the Fair.

Before returning to the city, he will visit the Sumas reclamation area, and make a personal inspection of the situation there.

UNWARRANTED CRITICISM

Mr. John Wheatley, M.P., is one of the spokesmen of the British Labor Party. As an ex-Minister of a Labor Government, no doubt he outlines the policy of Labor on the subject of emigration from the British Isles. He has been enunciating this at a Glasgow meeting at which he said that it was extremely cruel to send people to Canada for farm work "as they would be exploited and would soon find themselves helpless and friendless in an ungenerous land." It is difficult to imagine that Mr. J. Ramsay MacDonald, the British Labor leader, who has a passing knowledge of this Dominion, and who is now a visitor in our midst, would condone the strictures that this is an "ungenerous land." It was from Glasgow, where Mr. Wheatley gave out his warning, that John A. Macdonald came to this country to experience the country's generosity to such an extent that he became its Prime Minister. There is the case, too, of Donald A. Smith, another Scottish emigrant, and countless other illustrations might be quoted to show that Canada, far from being ungenerous, offers limitless opportunity to the right class of immigrants. The opportunities today are greater than in the time of John A. Macdonald and Donald A. Smith, but Mr. Wheatley is evidently misinformed on the subject.

The policy of Labor in Britain in the matter of emigration, and especially emigration to Canada, should be corrected by first-hand knowledge. Perhaps there will be a better appreciation after Mr. J. Ramsay MacDonald's present visit to the country. Mr. Wheatley is among those who do not want to see any possible votes for the British Labor Party lost through emigration, but we can assume that the British Labor leader is more concerned about the means of livelihood for his followers than the political fortunes of his party. Mr. MacDonald should do something, after examining conditions in this Dominion, to correct the unfortunate remarks of his colleague in the Labor Party. He has been held in the spotlight of the public attention in a country which has little sympathy with his policies, and this fact alone should prove to him that Canada cannot be described as "ungenerous," just as the record of success among immigrants from the Old Land tell the story of the opportunities which this country offers to people of British stock.

SENATE REFORM

The reform of the Senate, a spasmodic cry in the programme of the Liberal Party, is to be "accomplished" at the next session of the Federal House, but not in the manner contemplated by Mr. Mackenzie King in his pre-election utterances. The reform, indeed, is to be of a character which is likely to make the Senate more long-lived. It is proposed to bring forward an amendment to the British North America Act whereby all doubt will be removed as to the right of women to sit in the Upper Chamber. In other words, women are to be made "persons" by legislation.

Mr. King's ideal of a Senate is one in which the Liberals would always have a majority. Time is accomplishing this for him because Conservative Senators are dying and are being replaced by Liberals, until it is only a matter of a year or so before the political complexion of the Chamber will be changed. The desire to include women in the senatorial ranks is a reform which women themselves will have brought about when it is accomplished. They have been agitating, and have been particularly insistent because of their failure to elect what they consider a sufficient quota in the House of Commons. Mr. King has fallen in with their view on Senate reform. Once women are in the Senate any desire which may exist in any quarter for the abolition of that Chamber will become all the more difficult of realization.

SOVIET HORSE DEALS

Canadian horse breeders, owners and dealers are having a somewhat unfortunate experience in attempting to carry on business with emissaries of the Russian Soviet Government. Prior to the arrival of these emissaries they appear to have entered into contract with two Western horse dealers whereby the latter agreed to supply 1,150 horses, with the option of increasing the number to 2,300. The Soviet buyers, five in number, arrived in Calgary. The deal was delayed in the first instance because there was doubt about the financial backing of the Russians. When finances were presumably straightened out, 300 head of horses were selected from different ranches. These horses were according to what the contract called for, but out of the 300, the Soviet representatives selected just four. Out of another batch of 200, only six were purchased. Because 17,300 head of the type of horses wanted were held to show the buyers and it was found that only an infinitesimal number of these would be selected, the contract was cancelled.

In Montana the Soviet buyers have used the same methods, causing great loss in time and money to the horsemen of that State. They did the same thing in British Columbia last year when ranchers rounded up their horses and drove them to selected points and then the buyers only took a few head. The Soviet Government evidently does not know the meaning of a business contract. The horse deals illustrate the methods which they employ and afford a lesson of the danger of having truck or trade with a nation which has already renounced its international monetary obligations. Canadian ranchers are not likely to be deluded again and they will certainly not be among those who advocate recognition of the present regime at Moscow.

THE AGE FOR LEARNING

Professor Thorndike, of Columbia University, has advanced a theory which, if applied in practice, would upset many a scheme of state education. He has made investigations, studies and experiments which prove that the ordinary persons learn much faster after the age of twenty than before. He says, in fact, that nobody under the age of forty-five should hesitate to learn anything. The trouble is that most people think that they have learned all that is necessary during their childhood days and do not worry at all to inform themselves in adult life. Professor Thorndike believes that too much money is now being spent in the childhood stage and that the money which is being spent could be better employed, in part at least, by seeing that the child has good food, plenty of sleep, adequate dental care, plenty of sunlight, surgical repair of physical defects, good companions and good books. Under such "tuition" he says a child would grow in body and in mind.

The time-honored rule that one is "too old to learn" is exploded if Professor Thorndike is right. Undoubtedly he is right. He wants to substitute for it "one is never too old to learn," a truism which is not sufficiently recognized. The thought he has cast upon the troubled waters of education is one that should be examined by educational authorities everywhere.

The New York World takes issue with a statement of the Anti-Saloon League of the United States wherein the latter says that "stamina, reserve strength, sound hearts and steady nerves—products of prohibition—played their part in enabling athletes from the United States to roll up a higher score in victories in the Olympic Games than was registered by representatives of nations handicapped by the liquor traffic." The World says that the stamina, reserve strength, sound hearts and steady nerves "seen to have been less effective than at any time before." In fact, the truth is that the athletes of the nations handicapped by the liquor traffic ran rings around the Americans in everything except the field events. The World says the Americans took only one first place on the track and that was taken by Barbuti, who won the 400 metres. Barbuti is a representative of the New York Athletic Club, which, The World points out, "is not in the dry belt at all."

Dr. Charles H. Mayo, the eminent surgeon, has laid himself open to the obvious retort by defining his views as to exactly how a newspaper should be run. The Ohio State Journal remarks that it is thinking of "writing a two-column editorial on the technique of removing the gall bladder, in case he'd like to know."

Those who lay emphasis on the number of unemployed in Britain omit to relate that the Old Land is employing 1,250,000 more workers in her factories than she did before the war.

METEOROSCOPIC

I shall not see thee, nay, but I shall know
 Perchance thy grey eyes in another's eyes—
 Shall guess thy curls in gracious locks that flow
 On purple brows, yea, and the swift surmise
 Shall follow and track, and find thee in disguise
 Of all sad things that fair, where sunsets glow
 When through the scent of heather, faint and low,
 The weak wind whispers to the day that dies.

From all sweet art, and out of all old rhyme,
 Thine eyes and lips are light and song to me;
 The shadow of the beauty of all time,
 In song or story are but shapes of thee.
 Alas, the shadowy shapes! ah, sweet my dear,
 Shall life or death bring all thy being near?

REFUGNANT TO CANADIANS

To treat with indifference, or, as someone has suggested, "amused tolerance," the political agitation about "equality of status" with the Mother Country now again active in Canada, would be to do this Dominion and Empire a very grave disservice. There is a sinister under-current to this agitation, and all who stand for Empire solidarity and safety should understand that there is a thing to be understood—and met. Mr. Bennett has done well to promulgate in definite terms upon this agitation—Halifax Herald.

ENGLISH AS A WORLD SPEECH

So guarded against corruption, English has a fine chance to spread. In its purity it is comprehensive, and fluid, and catholic. Wireless telegraphy and telephony in particular, knowing no national boundaries, require a convenient medium, and there is no present prospect that any artificial language will prevail. We have English ready to hand, and while we may not force it on others, there is ample evidence that others are already persuaded of its expediency—Portland Oregonian.

Every one must see and feel that bad thoughts quickly ripen into bad actions, and that, if the latter only are forbidden, and the former left free, all morality will soon be at an end.—Bishop Porteous.

CHINESE WILL LOOM GREATLY

MR. G. M. BILLINGS TELLS KIWANISANS COUNTRIES CAN NOT DISREGARD CHINA

University School Principal Outlines Development of Shanghai, the Great Model City

"Sooner or later the Chinese will loom very greatly in relation to the countries on the Pacific Coast, and no country can afford to disregard that which is taking place in China today," declared Mr. G. M. Billings, principal of the University School at Mount Talmie, in addressing members of the Victoria Kiwanis Club yesterday at their weekly luncheon meeting in the Empress Hotel ballroom.

Mr. Billings, who spoke to the Kiwanians on "Shanghai—the Model City," resided for many years in Shanghai, where he was engaged in business. He is now in charge of a public school, which was attended by 400 European boys, representing twenty nationalities, 90 per cent of whom were British.

The speaker traced the development of Shanghai from 1842, when it was established as one of the five treaty ports, until the present time, when it has 1,000,000 inhabitants, and the way it is governed is a wonderful object lesson to other communities.

RESIDE IN AMITY

"There are twenty-five races living together in amity in Shanghai, and there was not one instance of racial friction prior to the war, and practically none during the Great War," Mr. Billings stated.

The revenue of Shanghai had increased, he said, from $2,500,000 in 1917 to $7,500,000 in 1927, indicating a tremendous advance in the progress of the city.

Mr. Billings stated that the first Shanghai was controlled by the British Consul, and later a committee of five members, the Crown took over direction.

The Council today consists of nine members, six British, two American and one Japanese, and the committee is responsible for the city's development, which in turn is responsible to the diplomatic corps at Peking.

DEPARTMENT COSTS

The annual expenditures of the various departments in Shanghai were as follows: Volunteer corps, $87,000; fire brigade, $276,000; police, $1,800,000; health, $253,000; education, $386,000; welfare, $1,000,000; theatre, $92,000; finance, $164,000 and secretariat, $322,000.

The careful management of business departments in Shanghai has been as follows: Volunteer corps, $87,000; fire brigade, $276,000; police, $1,800,000; health, $253,000; education, $386,000; welfare, $1,000,000; theatre, $92,000; finance, $164,000 and secretariat, $322,000.

The speaker observed that the parks committee in Shanghai paid $75,000 annually on the upkeep and improvements of the parks. The police were a loyal, brave and efficient force, and consisted of 374 Europeans, 1,000 Chinese and 1,841 Chinese, the salaries totaling $1,427,000.

VOLUNTEER CORPS

Shanghai had a strong military force of well-drilled volunteers, who were armed with artillery, machine guns and other modern equipment, and organized by a paid permanent force. The volunteer corps was composed of 107 officers and 1,500 in the ranks.

The musical entertainment was furnished at yesterday's luncheon by Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Rydell of Aberdeen, Wash. Mrs. Rydell rendered violin selections, and Mr. Rydell contributed to the programme was greatly appreciated.

President C. Elwood Watkins tendered the thanks of the clubmen to Kiwanian Mrs. E. Rydell and Moore-Whittington Lumber Company for their gift of a standard for the club.

Mr. William Tickle, a new member of the Kiwanis Club, was tendered a rousing welcome upon being introduced to the meeting.

Other Countries Intend to Join in Anti-War Treaty

PARIS, Aug. 28.—The effect of the signing of the Kellogg-Briand War Renunciation Treaty already was apparent today. Nations in various parts of the world had already announced their intention to become signatories to the pact.

The original signatories were still wet when telegrams and cables of approval from other countries began to pour into Paris. The Czechs, Rumanians, Jugoslavs, and Peru are among those having expressed this wish.

The compact now open to adherence by all civilized nations. It is expected that at least a year will elapse before the treaty has been finally ratified by the original signatory countries, whose legislatures must pass on it.

MOSCOW, Aug. 28.—The French Ambassador, M. Herbelot, acting on instructions of his Government, yesterday handed to Maxim Litvinoff, vice-minister for foreign affairs, an official invitation to Soviet Russia to join other nations in adhering to the Kellogg-Briand pact.

PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION
 Sir,—The 1928 Exhibition is past, and the public and the press have been generous in their praise, as shown by the editorial articles in both local papers and the practical support of the general public as registered by 34,156 paid admissions to the fair.

Mr. Editor, in your kind remarks you refer to expansion both in the on behalf of the Exhibition before its buildings and grounds, and, for my memory does not recall that I will incur a large item of expense on capital account.

In the Spring of 1929, some Aldermen have to face the music on behalf of the Exhibition before the estimates committee of the City Corporation. Further, it is apparent that the Council of 1929 will be confronted with increased expenditure on behalf of the School Board for a new technical school and possibly a new graded school. The water committee must have funds to deal sanely with our watershed property and our valuable timber reserve. Also our engineering department will have its calls upon the public purse, and rightly so, for Victoria is growing.

One thing is sure. Some members of the 1929 Council will demand a reduction of the mill rate. Now, Mr. Editor, I am wondering where you will stand at that precise time, for my memory does not recall that I received any great support from either the press or the public when I advocated the 1928 grant for exhibition purposes this year.

My point is this—Help and support at the citizens' meeting is vital if we as Aldermen really want to make our Exhibition of 1929 and in the future years, "bigger and better," and do not forget that the City Council and the Provincial Department of Agriculture are the Party Godmothers when grants for extension work are being sought.

H. O. LITCHFIELD, Alderman, City Hall, Victoria, B.C., August 28, 1928.

HARVEST WORKERS

Sir,—When in Canada last year I was delighted to find how enthusiastic your women's organizations were to receive those from the Old Country. I enjoyed that wonderful display of hospitality, and I am among my best friends many women (aye and men, too) in Canada.

away I, through your columns, appeal to the women to endeavor to get into touch with our unemployed men who have gone over to help with the harvest? For sometimes it only requires a friendly visit to make the "stranger within your gates" realize how much the Canadian loves the Motherland.

From the homes of members of the Women's Guild of Empire in the mining districts and know that there are many friendly faces in Canada, who I feel sure, on reading this letter, will do all they can to get into touch with the British harvesters and may help him to decide to settle in another part of our great Empire.

FLORA DRUMMOND, Women's Guild of Empire, 7 Grosvenor Gardens, London, S.W.1, England, August 16, 1928.

ART SECTIONS AT EXHIBITION

Sir,—In today's issue of The Colonist a letter appears signed under the name of R. Boyd MacGill, "Connoisseur of Art." Presumably the art section referred to is the one recently held at the Willows Exhibition. On inquiry at the office I find that MacGill was not, nor never has been, a member of the art section of the fair, but was attending the amateur section, which, by the way, was the most successful section of the art exhibition. My information is that the conveners of the art sections were, Mr. T. B. Bamford, Mr. James Christison, Mr. Charles H. Scott (Vancouver Arts Exhibit), and several other ladies and gentlemen who gave their time and devotion to make the art section the great success it was.

"Honor to whom honor is due," H. A. WALKER, 3720 Quadra Street, Victoria, B.C., August 28, 1928.

DOMINION STEEL REPORTS FOR YEAR

MONTREAL, Aug. 28.—The financial report of the Dominion Steel Corporation, Limited, and consolidated companies, with which is incorporated the Dominion Iron & Steel Company, Limited, for the year ending December 31, 1927, reveals earnings from operations at $4,358,114 as compared with $3,832,274 in the preceding year. From the operating profits of $4,438,114 was deducted sinking fund depreciation and depletion requirements of $1,039,917, leaving a balance of $3,398,197. Deduction of bond interest at $1,227,647 and discount on bonds of $75,826, left net profit at $2,094,724 as against $1,408,464 in 1926.

MINERS PROTEST

GLACE BAY, N.S., Aug. 28.—Contending that Canadian labor should have preference of employment in the Western harvest fields and stressing the belief that the ranks of unemployed in the Nova Scotia mining districts would be swelled by the recent influx of British miner-harvesters to Canada, the executive of District 26, United Mine Workers of America, unanimously agreed, with the Provincial and Federal Governments regarding the matter.

The executive states that the British miners, who are "being lured to work six, seven and eight hours a day, and are now to be conscripted as farm laborers, where the daily hours average from twelve to fifteen hours, are being exploited, and that a natural consequence of this will be that these men, finding the work utterly unprofitable, will swell the ranks of unemployed throughout Canada."

Auction Bridge Analyzed

By WYNNE FERGUSON

Author of the Authoritative Book, "Auction Bridge for 1928"

SOME PROBLEMS ANSWERED BY ENGLISH EXPERTS

The competition conducted by The London Sunday Times has been completed, and the decision of the judges has been announced. In the following prize hands, Z is always seated at the table as follows:

A Z
 A B

1—Z Y one game: A B, 9. Z bids "One No-Trump"; A, "No Bid"; Y, "Two Hearts"; B, "No Bid." What should Z say, holding Spades, A, J, 10, 6, 5; Hearts, A, Diamonds, A, Q, 7, 4, 3; Clubs, A, 8?

2—Z Y, 10; A B, 9. In rubber game, where Z said "No Bid"; A, "No Bid"; Y, "One Spade"; B, "Two Hearts"; Z, "Two Spades"; A, "Three Clubs"; Y, "Three Spades"; what should B say, holding Spades, A, 10, 4; Hearts, A, Q, J, 7, 6, 4; Diamonds, A, 6, 3; Clubs, Q, 7?

3—Z Y, 10; A B, 9. In rubber game, where Z said "One No-Trump"; A, "Two Hearts"; Y, "No Bid"; B, "Two Spades"; Z, "Three Diamonds"; A, "Four Clubs"; Y, "Four Diamonds"; what should B say, holding Spades, K, Q, 10, 8, 7, 6, 2; Hearts, 2; Diamonds, 6; Clubs, Q, 9, 8, 7?

4—Z Y, 20; A B, 9. In rubber game, where Z said, "No Bid"; A, "One Heart"; Y, "No Bid"; B, "Two Clubs"; Z, "Two Spades"; what should A say, holding Spades, K, 9, 5; Hearts, A, K, J, 5, 4; Diamonds, Q, J, 7; Clubs, 9, 4?

5—Z Y one game and 24; A B, 9. where Z said "One Spade"; what should Z say, holding Spades, J, 10, 9, 7, 5; Hearts, 9, 5; Diamonds, A, Q, 7; Clubs, A, 8, 7?

6—Z Y, 10; A B, 9. In rubber game, where Z bids "Two Hearts"; A, "Two Spades"; Y, "Three Hearts"; what should B say, holding Spades, 6, 5; Hearts, 4; Diamonds, A, K, 5, 2; Clubs, A, Q, 7, 5, 4?

7—Z Y, 10; A B, 9. In rubber game, where Z bids "One No-Trump"; what should A say, holding Spades, K, 9, 6; Hearts, K, J, 2; Diamonds, Q, J, 3, 2; Clubs, 8?

8—At love all in first game, where Z bids "One No-Trump"; what should A say, holding Spades, K, 9, 6; Hearts, K, J, 2; Diamonds, Q, J, 3, 2; Clubs, 8?

9—At love all in first game, where Z bids "One No-Trump"; what should A say, holding Spades, K, 9, 6; Hearts, K, J, 2; Diamonds, Q, J, 3, 2; Clubs, 8?

10—At love all in first game, where Z bids "One No-Trump"; what should A say, holding Spades, K, 9, 6; Hearts, K, J, 2; Diamonds, Q, J, 3, 2; Clubs, 8?

11—At love all in first game, where Z bids "One No-Trump"; what should A say, holding Spades, K, 9, 6; Hearts, K, J, 2; Diamonds, Q, J, 3, 2; Clubs, 8?

12—Z Y, 12; A B, 9. In rubber game, where Z says "One Spade"; A, "Two Hearts"; Y, "No Bid"; what should B say, holding Spades, Q, 10, 5; Hearts, 5; Diamonds, A, Q, 9, 3; Clubs, 4, 7, 5, 2?

The English judges consisted of three members of the Portland Club of London, the best known card club in England, and all of them well-known players, so their opinion is worthy of greatest respect. Their decision (by a majority vote) as to the proper bid with the foregoing hands is as follows:

1—Two No-Trumps.
 2—Double.
 3—Five Clubs.
 4—No Bid.
 5—No Bid.
 6—One No-Trump.
 7—Four Clubs.
 8—One No-Trump.
 9—No Bid.
 10—One Spade.
 11—One No-Trump.
 12—No Bid.

The decision as to each hand of the majority of the competitors is not available. This is to be regretted as their opinion makes an interesting comparison with that of the judges. The writer would agree with the opinion of the English judges in all but hands No. 1, 10, and No. 11. In hand No. 1, it seems to the writer that two spades is a better bid than two no-trump. The fact that Z has the singleton ace of hearts is the danger point of the hand because Y may have a long strong of hearts and no re-entry card. If that is the case and the opponents open the club suit as they probably will, game will probably result at no trump. On the other hand, if Y has any help at all for spades, Y Z should score game without difficulty. Don't let 100 aces induce you to make an unsound no-trump bid when you have a sound suit bid as in this example.

In this connection the writer also considers an original bid of one no-trump with this hand an unsound bid. The proper bid is one spade for the reason already given.

In hand No. 5, the writer would bid one no-trump, rather than pass. Y Z are 24 on the score, and, if they make one spade, they will score game and rubber. On the other hand, if A B bid one no-trump, they not only have a good chance to make it, if left in, but also can double two spades if bid by Y Z. A pass with this hand seems poor strategy. Y will certainly not take out his partner at that score and it is easily possible to make one spade without difficulty. Don't let 100 aces induce you to make an unsound no-trump bid when you have a sound suit bid as in this example.

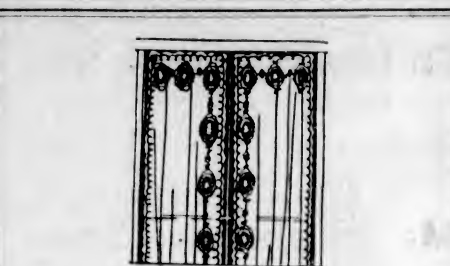

In this connection the writer also considers an original bid of one no-trump with this hand an unsound bid. The proper bid is one spade for the reason already given.

In hand No. 11, the question of a choice between a weak major suit bid and a no-trump is presented. The writer would prefer the bid of one heart, however, to the no-trump bid because of the singleton ace of hearts. That is, game will certainly be opened and the hand may turn out very badly at no-trump. On the other hand, if Y has 10 hearts at all, Y Z ought to do very well at that suit and certainly cannot suffer harm.

In the following article, has No. 4, No. 7, No. 8 and No. 10, which involve interesting points of bidding, will be discussed.

Mother—"You were extremely naughty to disobey me, and I have punished you to impress it on your mind."

Son—"But, mummy, aren't you mistaken with regard to the position of my mind?"

ELEVATOR IS NEARLY COMPLETED

Alderman H. O. Litchfield Receives Outline of Work That Is Now Being Undertaken at Ogden Point

MACHINERY BEING RAPIDLY INSTALLED

That construction of the Panama-Pacific Grain Terminal Limited 1,000,000-bushel elevator at Ogden Point docks is rapidly drawing to completion is indicated in a communication received from C. D. Howe & Company, engineer for the city. Alderman H. O. Litchfield, C. D. Howe & Company have been protecting the city's interest in the elevator. The letter received by Alderman Litchfield, who is chairman of the industrial committee, is as follows:

"The Panama-Pacific Grain Terminal Limited elevator at Ogden Point is now beginning to assume a finished appearance. Work is proceeding rapidly on the installation of the machinery in the workhouse. During the last week a start has been made on the installation of motor starting equipment and the placing of the built-up roofing.

"In the workhouse, work is being centred on the installation of the two 1,800-bushel and one 2,000-bushel scales, and the installation of the elevating machinery on the top floor. Most of this machinery has been placed, and, as soon as it has been permanently set up, the construction of the steel work enclosing it can be commenced. At various other places in the workhouse, machinery is being set up, including the motors. This week has also seen the beginning of the placing of the motor starters, and, as soon as the remainder of this electrical equipment has been received, the power installation can be completed.

"The installation of the electrical equipment in the substation is going rapidly ahead, and will be completed in a few days.

"Also this week, work has commenced on the placing of the built-up roofing, beginning with the roof of the cupola over the storage tanks.

"Under a general heading, the following work is under way: Installation of the passenger elevator in the stair-tower; placing the corrugated, galvanized siding on the stair-tower; erection of the dust collectors on the east and north walls of the workhouse; stripping the moving forms from the storage tanks; finishing up sundry concrete, such as window sills, machinery bases, etc.; bolting up steel beams, etc., in the workhouse; erecting sundry structural steel; painting structural steel, window frames, and spouting, and placing floor finish.

YUKON COUNCIL SPEAKER DIES

Dr. Alexander John Gillis, Well Known in Yukon, Dies in Victoria

There passed away yesterday, at the residence, 1572 Winitz Street, Dr. Alexander John Gillis, a native of Antigonish, Nova Scotia, and a resident of Victoria for the past few years. He is survived by his widow and one young daughter in Victoria, also a sister and two brothers in Boston. He was a member of Yukon Lodge No. 45, F. & M.

The late Dr. Gillis was well known in the Yukon, as well as in British Columbia. In 1898 he went in over the White Pass to Dawson during the gold rush, and there practised his profession as a dentist until four years ago, when he returned to Victoria. During the commission of the Honourable George Black, Dr. Gillis was a member of the Yukon Territorial Legislature, being Speaker of that Council.

The remains are resting at Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel, from whence the funeral will take place at a time to be announced later. Service will be under the auspices of the Masonic craft.

Board of Trade Trip to North Successful One

ALICE ARM, Aug. 28.—Leaving Alice Arm Sunday night on the Canadian Pacific ship, the Alice, members of the Vancouver Board of Trade, one hundred strong, end today an illuminating tour of the Northern mining fields. The remainder of the voyage, which began in Vancouver last Wednesday, will take the wandering ambassadors of commerce down the West Coast of Vancouver Island and back to Vancouver on August 31, stopping at Prince Rupert, Stewart and Alice Arm.

The touring business men have met unbounded hospitality at every point and have also been hosts on the ship to many residents of the North. Their review of the mining field of Portland Canal has taken them through the famous Premier mine at Stewart, gold producer extraordinary, the Dolly Varden property, the new Toric at Alice Arm, one of the promising silver prospects of the district, and many others. Executives of all the mining properties visited have given their visitors every opportunity to see the mining industry from the bottom to the top, and exhaustive inspections of underground workings, milling operations and other production figures have been made in every case.

The tour of the party, which is headed by Mr. T. S. Dickson, president of the Vancouver Board of Trade, and which includes some of the most representative business men of the metropolis, has admitted given the city dwellers a new and valuable insight into the problems of their sister communities, this point being stressed at every function on shore and aboard the ship.

Tokio Being Rebuilt as Earthquake-Proof City

Moving of Two Hundred Thousand Structures to New Sites Included in Task That Confronts Government Engineers

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Tokio has undertaken the colossal project of building an earthquake-proof city. The programme now under way is to move 200,000 structures to new sites, and to build new structures on the sites of the old ones. The city is being rebuilt entirely to plan. Streets, sewers, rivers, canals, tramway systems, railways, water works, gas systems, telephones, light and power utilities are conforming to the changed conditions.

The moving of 200,000 structures in Tokyo to new sites is only one of the difficult engineering problems. Old Tokyo was a feudal city with walls, narrow and crooked streets and congestion, and housing conditions were chaotic.

PEAT RECOMMENDED AS AUXILIARY FUEL

Suitable for Use in Spring and Fall—Manufacturing Activities in Ontario and Quebec

Peat fuel is the only natural fuel, apart from wood, which occurs in economic quantities in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. The Department of Mines up to the present time has surveyed, mapped and sampled over 250,000 acres of peat bogs, strategically located with respect to transportation and population in these two provinces. The total content of standard peat fuel which can be manufactured from the peat in this area is estimated to be considerably over 250,000,000 tons. The Dominion Fuel Board, in its interim report, recommended the use of peat where it can be produced and transported economically as a means of decreasing dependence on imported anthracite.

In order to demonstrate the feasibility of manufacturing peat fuel on an economic basis under conditions obtaining in Canada, the Dominion Government decided in 1927 to construct a peat manufacturing plant at Alfred, Ontario, according to the recommendations of the Joint Peat Committee. The plant, which was completed in May, 1928, is practically automatic, and when in normal operation will have a capacity of 20,000 tons of standard peat fuel, during a season of 100 days, operating twenty-two hours per day. On account of the late spring and excessive rainfall since that time, manufacturing operations were seriously retarded, but notwithstanding these drawbacks it is expected that about 10,000 tons of fuel will be available for sale at the termination of operations. Efforts will be made to market the fuel in an area within a sixty-mile radius of the peat plant, and a portion of the production will be sold in these cities.

During the present year it is expected that a peat manufacturing plant now in course of erection on a bog near St. Hyacinthe, Quebec, will be manufacturing peat fuel for sale.

Faithful Service Brings Recognition

QUEBEC, Aug. 28.—Celebrating his sixty-five anniversary of active participation in clerical life, the Rev. Mother St. Thomas d'Aquin, of the Bon Pasteur orphanage, was recently honored by her companions in the clergy and by the several generations of students which she has taught during her splendid career of the service of the church.

The Rev. Mother St. Thomas d'Aquin, nee Virginia Jones, is ninety-five years of age, sixty-five years of active life, and has been in the service of the Catholic religion for forty-three years. She was principal of the Bon Pasteur Academy, where she has been in the service of the church for the past twenty years. The venerable mother received a special benediction from the Holy See through the medium of Cardinal Gasparri, who telegraphed the blessing to His Eminence Cardinal Rouleau.

The fête in her honor opened with a solemn mass, conducted by the Rev. Abbe Alphonse Tardif, of Lévis College, assisted by the Rev. Abbe G. R. Gagnon and Edward Lemay, as deacon and sub-deacon. Mgr. J. E. Laberge, P.D., delivered a sermon at the close of the mass in his laudatory eulogy of the Rev. Mother on her untiring efforts in the orphanage.

AIRPLANE CLUB ACTIVE

WINNIPEG, Aug. 27.—What is believed to constitute a record for light aeroplane clubs has been established by the Winnipeg Flying Club, whose members have made more than 4,000 flights since the club opened on May 28, of this year.

The club has two DeHavilland Moth planes and during the period the club has been in operation at Stevenson Field, inclement weather has only interfered with flying on about six days. Thirty students have passed their test, of which more than half have qualified as full-fledged pilots.

Club officials have received word from Ottawa that Stevenson Field has been authorized as a customs air harbor for Manitoba.

Premier Says P.G.E. Directorate Question Has Not Been Considered

ISSUE WILL BE INVESTIGATED

When the subject of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway and the question of the directorate of that line was made the subject of a query with Hon. S. F. Tolmie last evening, the Premier said that he had not yet given this matter attention.

The subject of the directors of that railway has never been considered by the cabinet, and the Premier said that he was not in a position to say, in the absence of such consideration, what the result would be.

He went on to say that there were a lot of subjects with which the Government had to deal, and to do so with as little loss of time as possible. This was being done.

The matter of the directorate of the P.G.E. was something which he felt could wait its time, and he was of the opinion that there was no urgency in the matter.

Dr. Tolmie went on to say that he regarded the P.G.E. as a vexed subject with which he and his colleagues would have to deal with the greatest care. He had stated that he would take the opportunity as soon as possible to make a full inquiry into the situation respecting the road, its possibilities, and its future.

VANCOUVER POLICE GET BURGLAR GANG

VANCOUVER, Aug. 28.—Five men, alleged by police to be responsible for many Vancouver robberies, were arrested by Vancouver and New Westminster police on Monday afternoon and evening at the Highway Garage, Columbia Avenue and Eleventh Street, New Westminster. Hundreds of dollars' worth of haberdashery and clothing, some of it already identified as having been stolen in Vancouver, were found under the floor of the garage and in other places of concealment.

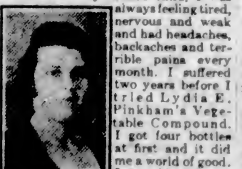

At 5:30 three Vancouver officers arrested Ed J. Dubell, Keefer Street, East, and Kishi Ono, Raymur Street, night caretaker at the garage.

Waiting in plain clothes at the garage from 6 to 10:30 p.m., three New Westminster officers arrested three more men, one by one, as they entered the place. These were Babe Cardacelli, Eighteenth Avenue East; Fred Wilson, alias Angus Campbell, Hastings Street East, and Charles Beale, Hastings Street East.

GOLD OUTPUT OF CANADA GROWING

The last ten years have brought a radical shift in the sources of North American gold output. Ten years ago the United States accounted for nearly three-quarters of the continent's total gold production. But since 1917 the gold output of the States has been almost cut in two, falling from over 4,000,000 ounces to little more than 2,000,000 ounces. The output for 1927 touched the lowest level in more than thirty years.

Mexican production during this decade has remained fairly constant, the figures for 1927 being slightly less than those for 1927. With United States production declining, and that of Mexico virtually stationary, Canada has rapidly assumed a position of much greater relative importance. Compared with the figures for 1917 Canada's gold production last year showed an increase of nearly 150 per cent. The Dominion has outdistanced Mexico as a gold producing country and has been steadily closing in upon the United States. Amounting to less than one-fifth of the United States production in 1917, Canada's output last year fell only 15 per cent short of that of the States.

During this ten-year period the gold production of North America, as a whole, shows a substantial decline. Were it not for the manner in which the Canadian output has leaped forward, North America's relative importance among the gold producing continents would have been severely reduced.

THROW BRICKS, NOT CONFETTI

In the campaign against the throwing of confetti in the church, the magazine of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, Middleborough, England, has published the following: "If anyone should feel bound to throw something by way of cheap compliment at weddings, we are quite willing to keep a supply of bricks for the purpose, but for goodness sake let us have an end to confetti throwing." The warning apparently has been heeded for confetti has decreased.

Japanese Tolerant or Religiously Indifferent

No Other Country In Which So Many Faiths Live Side by Side In Same Community and Same Household, Says Writer

By DR. S. WASHIO

(In The Trans-Pacific)

Whether the Japanese are specially tolerant or indifferent religiously, I know no other country where so many kinds of religion live together in peace as they do in Japan. They are here side by side in the same community and in the same household. It was not uncommon in my childhood and is still not rare to see that in one room of the same household what we etymologically call "god" (kami), which is, mythologically speaking, the sun-god (Amaterasu) and remotest ancestor of the race, is dedicated on a shelf in the manner of the Shinto shrine, and in another table on which are inscribed the posthumous names of the deceased members of the family are set in an elaborate case called the "butsudan" and worshipped according to the Buddhist ritual. You will not be surprised if there is a copy of the Bible or a Christian hymn book in the top of a bureau may. There is no doubt a fourth evidence of promiscuous religious belief, a little temple dedicated to the fox. And as the fifth evidence one member of the family may be a devotee of Tenrikyo and may have the Tenrikyo bible in his or her wardrobe. If the head of the family is a stockbroker he is likely to pay special homage to the fox. And the devotee of Tenrikyo is sure to be more enthusiastic for his or her favorite than the Christian member. But they do not quarrel. The Buddhist mother will send off her girl gladly to the Christian Sunday school and the Christian girl will gladly follow her mother to the Buddhist grave ceremony. And if a beggar priest comes to the front door with one of those seasonal sacred paper charms, my member of the family will not grudge ten sen and put the paper on the god's shelf.

THE FOX TEMPLE

I have given a picture of an average old family growing into the modern age. If you question them as to what it is that they believe they will not be able to give you any clear idea of either Shintoiism, Buddhism, Christianity or fox. And you are, indeed, not of taste if you question them seriously. In my neighborhood there is a fox temple under a rarely big old pine tree, which was originally the family dedication of the farmer who owned this piece of land. The farmer subdivided his area into lots, leaving the temple and the pine about ten years ago and is now living in idle uncultured luxury. His old mother died a year ago by throwing herself into a well. With trouble and expense he went to a seer (spiritualist), who told him that it was the fox that drove her to a miserable end. Before that an alpine military officer who lived in the neighborhood had an accident that cost his life, and it happened that his little boy had abominably played with the little temple, hanging from its stone base. A professor of the Foreign Language School, who lives opposite this temple, had also the misfortune to have his elder son killed in a traffic accident. There was a fire near by. And there were more accidents in this little community. The seer, who is supposed to have had no knowledge of the community, hinted to the farmer at most of these accidents and attributed them to the fox. The news spread in the community and people began to come to clean the temple, and my wife tells me that there are two or three people there early every morning sweeping the ground and paying homage to the fox even now, a year since the news. "Leave the pine but take away the temple," I remarked one day. The wife hissed me down. "Even the professor has since gone to consult the seer," she told me. She does not believe in the fox, but she means to be polite to the community sentiment.

TOLERANCE OR POLITENESS

I wonder if the religious tolerance of the Japanese is just this politeness. We do not go to the root of the question. The reverse side of it is that we do not come to observe any religious form through conviction but stray into it by chance. It is not religion itself but its external associations that happen to attract us. When a girl or boy begins to attend Sunday school or church, she is usually attracted by a Christmas card or music. When a grown-up man becomes a Christian he generally does so through the association of Christmas with the New Year. I think the poorest way to propagate religion in this country. In the suburb where I live there is an evangelical church, which conducts a street demonstration every Sunday evening, but if I am not mistaken the general sentiment of the people is that of silent scorn. The Japanese does not seek religious spirit, but readily falls into its external associations. Evangelism is bad taste. It does not give a sort of external association to which the average Japanese is likely to be attracted. Of course, enthusiasts are an exception. I am speaking in the general sentiment.

MOSAIC CIVILIZATION

The promiscuous assemblage of so many kinds of religion is but an illustration of the same racial genius that is evident in the mosaic of our civilization. We believe in Shintoiism, Buddhism and Christianity in about the same way that we take to the conglomeration of the Eastern and Western modes of life. You can't say a girl is Christian because she attends church any more than you can say she is Western because she is dressed in foreign style. At the same time she is no more Buddhist if she burns incense before the Buddhist shrine. She is just the same total of all these and no more. If you put Shintoiism, Buddhism and Christianity together and call that religion, there is more religion in Japan than anywhere else in the world. But if you ask if the ordinary Japanese is religious in the original sense of any of these three religions, you can hardly say that he is. The very fact that there are so many forms of religion promiscuous-

NOT DEVOTIONAL

It goes without saying that the race that takes religion by its external associations is not devoted to its spirit, whether it is the Buddhist doctrine of Nirvana or the Christian God. But you cannot say that the figure of an old woman kneeling before the Asakusa Kwanon or a fox temple and muttering a sorry prayer in his head is devotion. In my childhood I heard many instances related of a man or a woman, mostly women, going bare-footed at midnight to some temple or shrine and walking back and forth a hundred times the whole length of the stone pavement that leads to the building and kneeling some silent prayer at each end of the journey. Can there be a more devotional gesture? But devotion for what? She may be a lover cursing her rival or a mother seeking the recovery of her sick child. And she has no preference between a temple and a shrine. She goes where her fancy or chance association brings her. She is devotional only to her personal wish, and not to any religious creed. Privacy is her spirit and evangelism is her taboo. Even when devotion is made in a group, as you hear sometimes even in the midst of Tokyo in the noisy chanting of the Ikkoku Temple or Tenrikyo, they are shy of outsiders. This devotional spirit may be akin to that of a Catholic peasant, but it is not devotion in the sense of the Protestant Church. If Henry Ford goes to church, I suppose he believes in God with the same spirit with which he believes in his work. The Japanese is not devotional in that sort of way.

When Admiral Togo led his victorious fleet to the Bay of Tsushima, he paid homage to the sea shrine, I do not know if his motive was so much religious as political. With the same motive he would have paid homage to the Emperor. Indeed, I wonder if Shintoiism is not more politics than religion. We need not go to the remote ages of our history to find evidence of politics were indivisible. But rather early in the history of the Japanese civilization we know that Shintoiism came to a clash with the politics of the time. The Shintoiism secured its political inviolability and surrendered religion to the state. It had no theory or imagination of the life after death. Indeed, it had no philosophy of life. It was a simple and its ritual was too simple and bare to appeal to man's imagination about the mystery of life. It had no religious teaching at all, while Buddhism on its part had nothing political to struggle for. We have this distinction unconsciously in mind. Whether the Japanese mind is essentially non-religious or not, we do not conceive a pilgrimage to the sea shrine as a religious pilgrimage in the same sense as the pilgrimage of a peasant or tradesman's wife's pilgrimage to Koya-san. Pilgrimage to Buddhist temples became popular among common men as Buddhism spread, while pilgrimage to the sea shrine has been more or less a privilege of the ruling class. It is loyalty in the political sense, and hardly religious devotion.

POLITICS AND BUDDHISM

The political tradition of the Japanese ruling class was fortunate in having such a religion of non-resistance as Buddhism. It was a religion that was not a religion. Had a religion like Protestant Christianity been introduced in place of Buddhism when the country had no religious teaching at all, the Japanese political history might have been different. The religious tolerance of the Japanese does not mean political tolerance of any religious belief. As soon as religion assumes, directly or indirectly, complexion of any kind it becomes an object of suspicion. You remember how Omotokyo was ruthlessly suppressed, and how in early days of our democratic agitation the ruling class could scarcely disguise its suspicion of Christianity. It is that Christianity is regarded, rightly or otherwise, as the bulwark against Communism. I suppose our ruling class has no intention to digress into politics in favor of Buddhism. If there is rivalry or jealousy between the two, I wonder if it is not professional rivalry rather than religious. I cannot think that it is shared by a layman, educated or ignorant, who is Buddhist when he has a funeral in his family and sends to a Sunday School, and changes from the one to the other as readily as he wears kimono at home and yukawa when he goes out. It is a jazz of religion.

ST. ANN'S COMMERCIAL CLASSES

The Sisters of St. Ann conduct a full modern training department for young ladies entering a business career. The classes deal with every branch of commercial operations in which a girl may be employed, including the use of a Cash Book, with Bookkeeping, Stenography, Typewriting and the general work of the business office.

In addition to tuition in business routine and the branches mentioned, the Sisters instill out and perfect the pupils in spelling, punctuation and other necessary round work, so that a graduate from these classes is not simply a product of a course of superficial instruction in any special subject. This course avoids what might be called mechanically produced graduates, and supplies the business man with a dependable and finished office assistant.

The results of this course of training are apparent in the large numbers of graduates of St. Ann's who occupy responsible positions throughout the Province in the Dominion Civil Service, The Provincial Land Service, The Canadian Pacific Railway Company, Banks, Commercial Houses, Law Offices.

References will be cheerfully given to recent employers of pupils from these classes.

Tuition for course of tuition reasonable. A visit from parents or employers is always welcomed by the Sisters.

PROF. EASTMAN IS HOME FROM WORK AT GENEVA

International Labor Legislation in Its Effect on Provincial Regulations—

WILL SPEAK HERE ON SUNDAY NEXT

Professor Mack Eastman, formerly of Vancouver, and now chief section, research division, international labor office, League of Nations, at Geneva, was in the city yesterday to meet Hon. S. P. Tolmie, and will come here on Sunday to speak on "Three Years in Geneva, the World's Peace Centre."

Professor Eastman, who was the founder of the Vancouver branch of the League of Nations, in his interviews and speeches is giving special attention to the influence of the League on civilization and peace.

NAME MISLEADS

"The words 'international labor organization' were perhaps misleading," Dr. Eastman says. "The phrase might better be 'industrial relations' inasmuch as the plan of the organization is on an entirely new basis in world history. Each country sends to the great annual labor conference in Geneva, two Government delegates, besides one representative of the leading employers' association and one from the leading labor organization. For years Mr. Tom Moore has represented Canadian labor with exceptional success.

"The same principle holds good in the composition of the inner cabinet of twenty-four members, known as the governing body, which consists of twelve Government delegates, six employers and six labor delegates.

"It is worth noting while that although Canada enjoys a permanent place among Government delegates, yet Tom Moore's personality has always insured his election as one of the six labor delegates on this executive committee.

ORGANIZATION BUILT

"This ingenious system for uniting Governments, labor and capital in the elaboration of a great body of international social legislation makes the I.L.O. something absolutely new. It makes the annual international labor conference almost a world parliament in social economics.

"It was the intention of its creators that it should act as the root of war. In the words of part 13 of the Treaty of Versailles, 'international peace can be founded only upon social justice.' By a general improvement in the conditions of the working masses co-operation between the classes takes the place of possible strife and insurrection.

"Also the standardization of working hours and general position diminishes the bitterness of competition among the nations. It prevents the labor countries from undermining the high standards of the more advanced ones.

"This progress is achieved through finally adopted conventions adopted by the annual International Labor Conference in Geneva. A convention is an international labor treaty adopted by a two-thirds majority. Every Government is bound by treaty to bring the convention to the attention of the proper legislative authorities.

"A difficulty arises right here for Canada and other Federal states. According to the British North America Act the provinces have control of most labor matters and the Federal Government cannot ratify a convention until all the provinces have come into line. The only way out of the difficulty will be for the Federal Government to call the provincial premiers or their substitutes together, regularly every two years, and the Federal Government would be only too glad to ratify for the Dominion. This would give Canada her proper place in the eyes of the world's most important labor body, and a wide effort to level up the condition of work and of the life of the general public.

"In this way, within a few years the Provincial Governments would probably be inclined to adopt common measures of applications of all suitable conventions, and the Federal Government would be only too glad to ratify for the Dominion. This would give Canada her proper place in the eyes of the world's most important labor body, and a wide effort to level up the condition of work and of the life of the general public.

HAROLD LLOYD'S MOTHER PLEASSED

Mrs. Lloyd Smith Impressed With Victoria's Beauties During Short Visit Recently

Mrs. Lloyd Smith, of Beverly Hills, California, mother of Harold Lloyd, was a visitor in the city last week, registered at the Empress. The lady, who was contemplating a two months' world tour, came west by the Canadian Pacific Railway, stopping over at Banff and Vancouver en route. Manager Robertson, of the Dominion Theatre, and Mrs. Robertson, met the visitor at the wharf on her arrival in Victoria and subsequently took her motor driving in the district.

Mrs. Lloyd Smith had heard of the beauties of Mr. Butchart's Gardens, and although she had expected to see something really wonderful, was greatly surprised to find the reality far surpassing in point of beauty anything she had imagined. Her son, the distinguished movie star, is planning the erection of another "film" mansion on his sixteen-acre "lot" in the Beverly Hills, and his mother was assured, that after her visit to Mr. Butchart's grounds, she would have many valuable ideas that will assist her son in laying out the grounds of their new residence.

The grounds of Mrs. W. J. Pennday's residence on Belleville Street were also a delight to the lady visitor, who declared that she had never seen anything of a similar kind that looked so new and beautiful to her. Altogether, Mrs. Lloyd Smith was thoroughly impressed with her short sojourn in the capital and left for Seattle en route home a firm admirer of Victoria's many beauties.

Dr. Douglas, synodical missionary, and Rev. D. A. Smith, superintendent of the work among the Chinese. One of the pioneer ministers of the Presbyterian Church in British Columbia, Rev. T. S. Glasford, of Alberni, was specially welcomed. Rev. J. S. Patterson and Mr. W. M. Taylor gave a very interesting report of the proceedings of the last General Assembly last evening. The sessions are continuing today, when important matters will be brought forward for consideration.

ing to overcome through treatment. The Labor party also wanted to see day nursery schools, open-air nurseries, to which small children with working mothers could be sent. It would be economy to spend more money keeping the children healthy than spending so much in school medical service. But critics of the Labor party regarded the better housing and day nursery suggestions as extravagant.

NOTICEABLE CHANGE

Although medical inspection in the schools was started only twenty years ago, there was already a great difference noticeable in the health and social conditions of London. Miss MacDonald admitted this was not all due to medical inspection. The more widespread employment which took place during the war, and the fact that during that period of more universal wages, the women got into the habit of dressing their children better, was in part responsible. After the war the poor no longer accepted regressive in quite the same way; they had a new self-respect. There were very few ragged children in London any more. And although going barefoot might be healthier than wearing boots, being shod was a sign of self-respect. Not since the war had she seen a barefooted child at school, although before that it was no uncommon thing. Miss MacDonald mentioned the resentment which some would-be philanthropists seemed to feel at the healthy appearance of London's poor today. It was a fact that many wealthier people going down to the East End to give a Christmas party, found a cause for complaint in the fact that the children looked well. Yet it was almost incredible that anyone should want a child to look ill just for the sake of making it agreeable to patronize them.

Mrs. Peter MacNaughton, who presided, introduced Miss MacDonald to the meeting before presenting her with a handsome bouquet, and Miss Ravenhill, who was one of the pioneers of the health programme movement of the County Council schools, moved the vote of thanks.

"LADY BETTY"

By JOHN L. CARTER

Author of "The Cinema Girl," "Peggie the Aeronaut," Etc.

The "Studio Sensation" still occupied a place in the newspapers, though it did not promise to be a wonder for even the customary nine days. There had been an inquest; there had been many theories concocted by an imaginative press, but the thing was dying out. Lady Betty read all that there was to be read, and the suggestions of a few of the papers that Jimmy and his model were practically engaged to be married added to her bitterness.

There were times when she was almost assured that Jimmy had refrained from writing for calling solely out of a sense of decency, for it would certainly have seemed callous on his part to have instantly resumed his former relations with herself. But this assurance lasted for a moment. What weighed against it was the disturbing fact that Elsa le Page was with him hour after hour, day after day. She also would realize that Jimmy was free. And if she had found herself incapable of leaving him, even though her conscience had assured her that she ought to do so, what was to prevent her from doing her utmost to win Jimmy for herself?

It was not long before Lord Allister noticed the change in Lady Betty, and he made up his mind to visit Jimmy's studio once again. Jimmy seemed to be delighted to see him.

"How's Betty?" he cried eagerly. "Crackling is going on splendidly; he's going to get up tomorrow for an hour or so."

"Can I see him?" said Lord Allister.

"By all means! He will be delighted. Come along!"

Jimmy threw open the door, and revealed the convalescent Crackling leaning on a bed-rest with a chess-board on his knees. At the side of the bed sat Elsa. She was just taking the last of his knights.

"Hello, Crackling!" said Lord Allister. "This looks like a rapid recovery! Playing chess too!"

He did not notice the thing that spread softly over Elsa's face.

"They play chess night and day, these two!" declared Jimmy. "He won't let me play. It is always Mademoiselle le Page."

Perhaps there was something like a flush showed itself in Crackling's bronzed face, but that would have been hard to swear to. Certainly little Elsa seemed strangely uneasy, though none could have said that she looked unhappy.

"My daughter," said Lord Allister, "I want to come round and see you, Crackling," he said. "I'm afraid she will be disappointed. She looks on you as an ally."

Crackling tried to laugh. But the fact is that he felt that he would have given a great deal to have met Lord Allister's secret, the secret that even he himself could hardly yet credit, and certainly she would think it remarkable that he could fall out of love with her, and fall in love so utterly with Elsa, so very quickly.

"I shall be delighted," he said cordially.

"What do you say to the day after tomorrow then?" suggested Lord Allister.

"That will suit me very well. You will have to arrange with Weston, and, of course, my very exciting nurse! But I have no doubt that you will be able to manage it all right. In the meantime, give her my sincere thanks for having thought of me at all."

Jimmy was delighted at the idea. "Everything is going like a beautiful dream," he assured Lord Allister, when they got back into the studio. "But what do you think of them?"

He indicated Crackling's bedroom. Obviously Jimmy was very near the seventh heaven.

"I think you are much luckier than you deserve," said Lord Allister. "Well, expect us for tea, then. Oh, and by the way, have you any message for Betty?"

Jimmy shook his head with a smile.

"Yes. But it will keep till I see her," he said. "I have waited it seems years, since the thing happened—and I am not going to spoil it all by being impatient. So goodbye for a few hours!"

And Lord Allister had to be satisfied with that.

CHAPTER XXII

Lady Betty was doing her utmost to keep herself under control. She was seated with her father in his smoothly running car on her way to Jimmy's studio, her alleged intention being to visit the convalescent Mr. Crackling.

On the way up Jimmy's staircase she clung to her father's arm.

"I shall never dare to look him in the face," she said. "He would despise me if he thought I was trying to spy on him."

Lord Allister patted her hand as it clung to his sleeve.

"Just wait and see," he replied. "You will find him at least as much in love with you as you are with him."

And now he flung open the studio door, and deliberately stood aside so that Lady Betty was forced to enter first. It was an ominous sight that met her eyes. Jimmy was standing at the window with Elsa, just in front of him. He was holding both her hands in his.

"Let me go, father!" Lady Betty pleaded, turning back. She was trembling from head to foot.

But Lord Allister did not budge. "Don't be silly, Betty!" he whispered. "Why jump to conclusions—and a fair chance of proving himself a blackguard before you condemn him."

Jimmy had noticed them by this. "You run back to your patient, Elsa!" he cried. Then he came towards them.

"Hello, little Betty!" He was going to take both her hands, but she, remembering that he had held Elsa in just that same way, hid her hands behind her back, and stood there, defiant and flushed.

Lord Allister had moved over to the window in order to give them a fair chance of straightening things out. But that was not to be, for Elsa appeared at the bedroom door.

"Mr. Crackling says that Lord Allister and Lady Betty must come in immediately," she cried, and then she ran towards Lady Betty and without a moment's hesitation, kissed her and gave her an affectionate hug.

Then, as she turned to go, she asked: "Why did Elsa kiss her? Was it pity for an unsuccessful rival? In any case Lady Betty did not feel that she could respond, with a sick fear that all but incapacitated her."

Elsa held open the bedroom door while they passed through. Jimmy walked close to Betty, but she ignored him. She was mesmerized by her fear of Elsa, and her eyes hardly left the girl's pretty, smiling face. As they passed through the door, she saw that Elsa flashed a radiant smile at Jimmy.

It was an amazing, intimate smile. It took from Lady Betty the last shred of hope.

But she had time to think of Mr. Crackling now. He had already passed the time of day with Lord Allister.

"I'm so pleased to find you looking so well," she began.

Crackling beamed on her. Then he turned to the door and stretched out his hand to Elsa, who certainly took it willingly enough.

"Thank you entirely to this young lady!" he said, drawing her nearer so that she had to sit on the edge of the bed before he was satisfied. "And now I want to tell you a secret. It is not quite an hour since she promised to marry me. Fancy, Lord Allister, my allowing a girl of nineteen to marry a man of forty-three!"

Elsa laughed at that.

"Fancy my taking advantage of a wounded man!" she cried. "But we shall be so happy!" There was a defiant note in her voice, for it probably occurred to her that his coming had been very sudden in its coming. She started an anxious look at Jimmy, who was nothing more to her now than a very dear brother, who had been the indirect cause of her present surprising happiness.

"I'm delighted!" declared Lord Allister with perfect truth.

"So am I," added Lady Betty, very much from her heart. "You are to be congratulated, Mr. Crackling."

Then Jimmy, who had his own quarry to hunt, created a diversion. "The patient must not be excited," he said, "so let us clear out—except the nurse, of course!" he added.

Arrived in the studio Lord Allister glanced at his watch.

"Simply must run away!" he cried, turning to the door. Lady Betty was hurrying after him, but he waved her back.

"Not a moment to spare," he insisted. "And I shall not be able to run you home, dear. Get Jimmy to put you in a taxi."

And with that he was gone.

Lady Betty had fallen back in distress, but she instantly recovered and tried to pull the door open again.

"What are you running away from, Betty?" said Jimmy softly.

Lady Betty looked up at him as he stood at her elbow. Her heart was beating heavily, and her breath came unevenly.

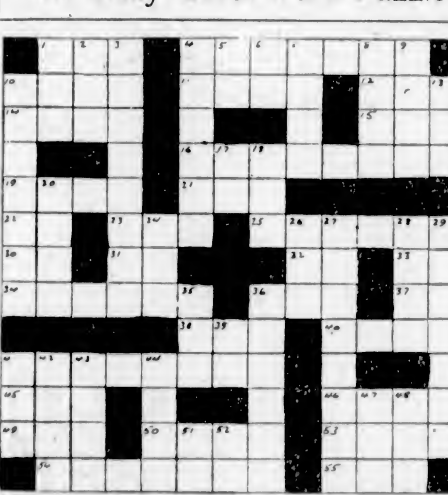

"Why run away from me, dear?" he said, his voice very low. "What have I done to make you distrust me?"

"I was afraid you had forgotten," she said.

Jimmy put his arm round her, and she made no resistance.

"Look up, little Betty," he commanded gently.

DR. BROWN TELLS STORY OF BIBLE

Wonder Book of the Ages Is Examined in Relation to Modern Science

The subject of the lecture of Dr. A. I. Brown, in the A. O. F. Hall on Cornmarket Street on Monday night, was "The Wonder Book of the Ages."

The speaker said: "There seems to be a widely current idea that while the Bible teaches many spiritual truths, its history and science cannot be depended on, because of the frailties and ignorance of the human writers. I want to puncture that complacent view of this Great Book. It is said that the scholarship of the world has rejected the belief in infallibility and inerrancy. This is not true, and now the pendulum of scientific thinking is swinging back to the orthodox view of scripture. The man or woman who desires to be up-to-date and informed is compelled to take a stand with this marvelous record of God."

Dr. Brown then proceeded to show wherein the Bible surpasses by measureless degrees any other book that had ever been printed. He spoke of its origin, its unity, its literature and language, its preservation, its universal interest, its remarkable sale—30,000,000 copies last year—its science, and its amazing power to transform the lives of all those who take it as guide and rule of life.

In speaking of its science, among other things, he said that its cosmogony and geology have been discovered, its astronomy antedating and still surpassing much that has recently been discovered. He said that centuries before Harvey discovered that the blood contains the life principle, Moses had stated the same momentous truth. The Bible reflects a flat earth and says it is round and poles in space. Many other things were taken up along this line.

"What are you running away from, Betty?" said Jimmy softly.

Lady Betty looked up at him as he stood at her elbow. Her heart was beating heavily, and her breath came unevenly.

"Why run away from me, dear?" he said, his voice very low. "What have I done to make you distrust me?"

"I was afraid you had forgotten," she said.

RESUMPTION

Upward Movement Develops on Broad Scale Despite Some Weak Spots—Call Rate 7 1-2 Per Cent

DEMAND STERLING
GOES TO NEW LOW

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Establishment of a new high level for the year by United States Steel company, featured the resumption of a broad upward movement in today's stock market.

Although a few weak spots cropped out here and there, final quotations disclosed a preponderance of net gains, many of which ran from 2 to 11 points. The day's sales again crossed 3,000,000 shares. Call money renewed at 7 1-2 per cent against 7 per cent yesterday, and was steady at that figure all day. There was nothing in the day's news to explain the sudden spurt of nearly 4 points in Steel common to a low peak of 155.

Several of the independent steels also were in brisk demand, Central Alloy and Inland mounting to new high levels. International Nickel, which is believed to harbor a large short interest, ran up over 9 points to a new high record at 112, closing at the top. Other issues to push into new high ground included Armadale, A. Fleischmann, Brockway Motors, Glidden Commercial Investment Trust, Loeck, Wiles, Biscuit, American Bee, Surgen, and American Express. Curtiss and Wright each rallied about 8 points. Abraham and Straus, Brooklyn Union Gas, Commercial Solvents, R. E. Macy, and United States Rubber preferred, also advanced 5 points or more.

In the railroad group Missouri Pacific moved into new high ground, while Jersey Central broke 113 1-2 points to 300.

Demand sterling sold down to a new low at $4.84 13-16, but cables held steady around $4.85 1-4. Japanese yen broke 17 points to 45.08 cents.

The bond market was only moderately active and price movements were irregular.

LADY CANOEISTS HAVE CLOSE CALL

Squall Capsizes Craft in Browning's Passage—Marooned Till Weather Moderates

UCLUELET, Aug. 28.—Miss Ella Custison of Clatsop River, and the Misses Joan and Gwendolyn Hawthorn, who had been camping on Long Beach for several days, were returning after viewing the beauties of Kennedy Lake when they encountered a squall off Indian Island in Browning's Passage and their canoe capsized.

The only thing that averted a serious tragedy was the fact that all the girls were expert swimmers. If the canoe had floated beyond their reach on the swift out-going tide the girls might have waited many days before being picked up by some passing boat, but owing to the presence of mind and quick action of Miss Gwendolyn Hawthorn, the camp, equipment and canoe were taken ashore. They were forced to camp on the rocky shore-line without food or water until the weather permitted them to proceed to Long Beach.

Metochosin Livestock Do Well at Victoria Provincial Fair

The sheep exhibit from Metochosin at the Victoria Fair numbered more than any other district in the province. Mr. A. C. McVicker, with his Suffolk, won first and champion with a mature ram, the first prize winner a year ago in the shearing class, defeating for champion honors the ram standing in that class over the entire circuit of Fall fairs. He also took third for two lambs, the produce of one dam, and third for two lambs, the get of one sire.

The Oxford from the Mrs. O. M. Jones ranch won third for shearing ram and first for pen consisting of lambs, ram and two ewes, bred in British Columbia, first-year exhibitor. The Shropshires of the Whitney-Griffith Brothers won third for pen of lambs.

Mr. McVicker also won first prize with a Berkshire sow with litter, and added to his herd of hogs a prize-winning boar from Mr. William Gilbert.

Mrs. McVicker won first prize with an Angora rabbit doe with litter, as well as with her woven rugs shown in the Woman's Building.

NANAIMO TO HAVE NEW STOP SIGNS

Will Install Aids to Traffic Regulation—Water System Pump Now in Operation

NANAIMO, Aug. 28.—At the regular weekly meeting of the City Council last evening, the legislative committee submitted a report in which they stated they had met Sergeant Russell, of the local staff of the Provincial Police, regarding traffic regulations, and as a result amendments to the traffic by-law are being drafted and will be put into force as soon as possible. They had also ordered twelve cast-iron stop signs, which will be installed at various points in the city as an aid to regulate traffic.

The Council in committee reported that during the past week they had put on further water restrictions, and had also started the pump to work in order to increase the water supply. The report, which was adopted, also stated that the pump would be kept in operation until all danger of a water shortage had disappeared. The pump, the report states, is working splendidly.

EAST SOOKE WINS AGRICULTURAL PRIZES

MUCH ACTIVITY SHOWN IN NORTH

Good Business Follows Mining, Fishing and Logging Operations in Quatsino Area

PORT HARDY, Aug. 28.—That a keen interest in the mining development of the Quatsino area is being aroused is evidenced by the number of mining experts passing through Port Hardy in the past few weeks.

The Caledonia Mines have a shipment of ore on the wharf at Port Hardy, and big news is daily expected from the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company as to the future development of the Coast copper mines.

With the activity in mining, fishing and logging merchants and hotelkeepers here report good business. Several new business structures are being put up in the town, and the road work, temporarily suspended during the election period, will shortly be renewed by the completion of Market Street.

There is every indication that the North end of Vancouver Island is entering upon a period of development and prosperity, and mining men express the view that the Quatsino-Port Hardy area will be second only to the Portland Canal as a producing mineral district.

A service of motor cars is maintained between Port Hardy and Coal Harbor, over the Government highway recently completed. The road, however, is very narrow in places, and, as traffic increases, will require to be widened.

Vancouver Island To Be Described Over Station KOMO

SEATTLE, Aug. 28.—George, Henry and Walt, KOMO's travelers, will continue their trip on Wednesday evening at 10 o'clock, crossing first over the Straits of Juan de Fuca, having a brief sojourn in British Columbia's capital city, with side trips to some of the outstanding scenic attractions of Vancouver Island, San Juan Islands, and then to Mount Baker Lodge. An interesting reaction from the traveling party is the fact that the series came from the well-known author, Mary Gay Morris, who has spent her lifetime among the Indians of the Peninsula. Her letter commented very highly on the travelogues. The one-hour program will include an Indian legend as told originally by Mary Gay Morris, also a number of songs, including "Victoria, My Homeland" and "On Dear Old Orcas Island."

Flying Snag Gives Logger Broken Leg

NANAIMO, Aug. 28.—While employed at Nanaimo Lumber Company's logging camp, Lake Road, Louie Witt was struck by a flying snag, and received a broken leg. He was removed to the Ladysmith Hospital by the Jenkins ambulance.

Between twenty and thirty of the residents attended. After considerable discussion, it was proposed to widen the hall on the north side fourteen feet, also enlarging the stage. The work will be started as soon as possible.

HOG RAISING TO BE AIDED

Assistance to Be Given to Adults and Children in Rearing of Swine

The Department of Agriculture, in its efforts to extend the livestock production in this province, has this year adopted means to encourage the raising of hogs. A new incentive is being offered this year to breeders of hogs to increase their output by offering prizes for what is known as "ton litter competition."

The basis of the competition is the bringing of a litter of young pigs during the progress of the season to aggregate a ton in weight when brought to maturing for marketing.

Prizes are offered in the various districts which are set aside for the competition. The judging of the hogs at maturity is according to type, finish and quality, and will consist of prizes for each of the districts. The districts that have entered in the competition for this year are:
